The North Boone Board of Education and The North Boone Education Association have come to a tentative agreement for a new contract for the 2011-2012 and 2012-2013 school years. The negotiating teams have worked to come to an agreement since March 2011. Since August the teams have worked with a federal mediator to help reach an agreement.

According to Board of Education President Don Ward, "The District is successfully managing its finances and its priorities during difficult economic times. One of the challenges in negotiating this contract was to balance prudent fiscal management against the strategic goal of attracting and retaining outstanding educators. We remain strongly supportive of our excellent teaching staff."

The NBEA and the Board of Education will vote on ratification of the agreement in the next few weeks. The details of the agreement will be published on the district's website after ratification by both parties.
